Actually, despite being his friend, I could never get as close to his circle of friends as I wanted. I always worried that if I showed them more attention than him, he might feel neglected. So, I reached out to his friends, classmates, and anyone close to him, but I never felt that comfortable bond with anyone. I also felt insecure. But after our relationship, I genuinely wanted to build a good connection with you guys, Vibi and Divya. I feel like we've grown somewhat closer, but despite my efforts, I still felt a disconnect. I'm not blaming you guys; it's just a feeling I have. Even though we're not distant, I mean, we still share common interests and conversations, right? But I distanced myself because I feared being questioned. As I write this, I'm not sure why I'm tearing up. I'm sorry if you have any negative thoughts about me. I can't be perfect in everyone's story. Even now, I don't understand why I suddenly feel your thoughts, maybe because of Pradee, it hurts that I can't talk to those who are close to him. You guys are one of my favorite couples, and I still admire you from afar. You guys are really amazing. If it weren't for Pradee, I'm sure I could have a little conversation with you guys. I was afraid of you guys, to be honest. I spoke with Vibi and Divya, and I felt they were mature enough, but I was also afraid of their maturity. I felt like I couldn't be myself around you guys. But whenever I think of you both, I tear up, which is unusual for me. Divya, you understand human psychology, right? Why am I afraid of you guys for no reason? And to be honest, I really want to talk to you guys to break this barrier and show you that you're not what I think you are; you're very cool and could form a good bond with me. Can you guys? I really like you both. It's been five years since you came to my birthday party, and I haven't seen or talked to you since then. Can I ask you something? Are you still angry with me for cheating to her and taking her place? If you are, it's okay; I understand you were with her for a long time, and we were all understanding. But honestly, with Pradee, I never intended to harm him, and I didn't. Like you all, I'm his best friend, right? How could I hurt him by being myself? My problem is, I can share anything with the world and strangers, but I'm afraid to speak to you guys. If you ever read this, just remember me with a smile and say, "That's okay"; that's enough for me. We don't need to speak or stay connected. Just ask about me through him; that's enough. Love you both.

So, it's you, Nelson. Honestly, I can't help but laugh. We go way back to primary school, right? Even though I feel a bit intimidated around you, we've had good conversations whenever we've spoken. But you know, I find it strange how I can easily chat with other friends from our school days, yet I struggle to see you as one of my primary school buddies. Why? Well, it's because more than being just a friend from those days, you're Pradee's friend. It's hard for me to see you in any other light. I find myself treating you with respect, almost like I would with elders. Don't laugh, man, this is genuinely how I feel about you. Anyway, you're cool, and I do feel comfortable around you. Nelson, Nelson, Nelsa. Stay fine, stay good—obviously, you're doing well. Can I confess something? I sometimes feel jealous of you, man. I don't know if I should admit it or not, but it's not a joke. There have been times when I've felt like how a first wife might feel towards a second wife😅—that's the level of envy I've had towards you. I want to be in your position. I want to have the same relationship with him in my next life. Don't laugh, I'm being serious.

Paiyaaa, paiyaaa, paiyaaa, you are incomparable. He possesses magical abilities and exudes positivity. People may inquire about Diva and Naveen, both introduced by Prici, but I never experienced any discomfort with them. However, he treats his friends, especially Nelson, Vibi, and Divya, like family, so I feel a distinct connection with them. Recently, I've overcome my fears and had meaningful conversations with Deepa and Prakash. I'm unsure if Sasi is aware of our connection, but even with him, I feel at ease. Kowsi akka and Chinna Viyay anna, though aware of us, have been responsive lately. Also, Suresh anna and Sanjay, along with another guy whose name I forgot, provide a comfortable environment for conversation. Honestly, I no longer feel the fear or discomfort I once did. With his cousins, I feel genuine comfort, devoid of any fear. However, I find it troubling that I can't establish the same level of connection with Divya or Vibi. I'm not sure what I’m expecting from you guys, but even a small gesture like exchanging festival wishes or asking about me would mean a lot. If you take the initiative, I’d gladly reciprocate and strengthen our bond.
